Would Sue City If Attempt Made To Sell Birch Park

LUNCH CLUBS ARE DIVIDED OVER PLANS

A. J. McFadden Announces He Will Seek Injunction If Sale Steps Taken
Suggestion Made City Make Attempt to Use Half Of Park for P. O. Site

DEFINITE announcement was made today by A. J. McFadden that he would institute injunction proceedings against the city of Santa Ana should the city council attempt to sell the west half of Birch park to the government as a site for a federal building.

The position of the Santa Ana pioneer was revealed in an interview, occasioned by revival of discussions on the project of selling a portion of the city's most important breathing spot for the purpose of a building site.

Interviews also disclosed that the presidents of eight luncheon clubs of the city are equally divided in their opinion as to the advisability of disposing of the parcel of city land.

Those favoring the sale are C. E. Rutledge, Rotary club; Wayne Lauterbach, 20-30 club; Clyde Downing, Round Table club, and Guy Gilbert, Breakfast club.

Those opposed are W. S. Spicer, Lions club; Mrs. John Tesson, Business and Professional Women's club; Asa Hoffman, Santa Ana Realty board, and George Smith, Kiwanis club.

Suggestion has been made that the council sell the property and apply the cash to the purchase of a larger tract of ground. The sum generally mentioned as proper compensation is $50,000, and it is believed that the council could purchase a tract of ground of sufficient size to give the city a real park.

It was pointed out today that the city owns the property in fee simple and that there are no reservations in the deed providing it revert to the original owners in case of failure to maintain it as a public park. The tract was given to the city through the cooperation of nearly property owners interested in enlarging the park.

The east half of the park was donated to the city by Otis Birch and his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith, with the reservation that the land revert to them in event of failure to maintain it as a park. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are dead. Two daughters survive. Suggestion has been made from different sources that attempt be made to get the consent of Birch and the two Smith heirs to utilization of the east half as a site for a city hall, in event the government should acquire the west half for a federal building.

Here, in brief, are the expressions of McFadden and the club presidents:

McFadden—"I have never taken the suggestion that the government acquire that tract seriously, as I understand the government is not interested in a site that would cause a great division of the people in the community. I find there is considerable opposition, particularly among old-timers. We have a park now and may not

FIVE INJURED IN ACCIDENTS OVER WEEKEND

One Man Jailed on Charge of "Driving Drunk"—Little Child Is Hurt

ONE MAN was arrested on a "driving drunk" charge and five persons were injured in a series of five automobile accidents reported to authorities here over the weekend.

A. L. Casteel, 23, salesman for Montgomery-Ward company here, is in the county jail, charged with a felony, after the automobile which he was driving collided with a Pacific Electric company's bus as Fourth and Panton streets yesterday at 6 p. m.

His companion, D. H. Howell, East Fourth street, in the Santa Ana Valley hospital, suffering from a skull fracture and cuts and bruises. His condition, however, is not believed to be critical.

Santa Ana police officers were today preparing to bring Casteel into court on the charge. No one in the bus was injured.

Victor Montoya, 7 year old Delhi youth, is in the Orange county hospital today, battling for his life, as the result of being run down by an automobile at the intersection of South Main street and St. Gertrude's place at 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

The car was driven by Fred J. Stoll, Santa Ana, Route No. 2, who reported to officers that the boy suddenly darted out from behind a bus and was struck by his car before the brakes could be applied.

Young Montoya is suffering from a skull fracture and his condition is critical, it was said.

Jack Belding, Costa Mesa, was out about the face at 5:30 p. m. Saturday, when the automobile in which he was riding with Richard Dittmer, Costa Mesa, collided with a car driven by Arland Garner, Santa Ana. The accident occurred at South Main and Cubbon streets, it was reported.

A. H. Kay, Fullerton, was reported slightly injured Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when the car he was driving, collided with a machine operated by Roy Goddard, 325 East Toluca street, Orange, at West Chapman avenue and Flower street.

SNOWSTORMS HIT POLAND, SWEDEN

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Renewal of severe snowstorms in Poland and Sweden added today to the suffering caused by 10 days of unbroken cold almost without precedent in European history.

Wireless was left as the sole means of communication between Warsaw and Lemberg, Tarnopol and Stanislavov, Poland, when telephone and telegraph lines went out and railways and roads were blocked by deep snowdrifts. Communications through other parts of the country were meager.

Trains were buried beneath snowdrifts on the route between Malmo, Sweden, and Copenhagen, A Morning Post Dispatch from Stockholm said today. Service on the line was disrupted by snow 14 and 16 feet deep.

POLICE UNABLE TO SOLVE GANG WAR MURDERS

Dozens of Leads and Clews Bring No Information to Identity of Killers

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Police apparently have no nearer solution today of the north-side beer massacre which occurred here last Thursday than they were a few hours after four or five gunmen lined up seven men in a garage and shot them to death.

A dozen leads, a score of clews, a hundred suggestions, all have been followed out but none have brought definite information as to the identity of the killers. Whether the men were rival gangsters, beer runners from out of the city, hired killers by an ambitious mob, former policemen or actual members of the Chicago police force is being debated.

The latest and seemingly most promising clew was given by Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education, who told police he saw a car which he thought was a police car run through a red light near the scene of the killings.

He said the car carried two men wearing uniforms and three others in civilian clothes. Caldwell declared he could identify these men if he saw them again and he believed he would be able to identify their automobile.

The theory that the men were members of the Detroit "Purple Gang" has been almost abandoned. Declarations that three members of that gang had been identified by women who operate two rooming houses near the garage were denied. It is believed spies for the killers, did rent rooms in the house but the identity of these spies is as much of a mystery as it was last week.

Certain things have been accomplished. The slaughter resulted in the most effective closing of liquor and gambling houses Chicago has seen in years. The city that a few weeks ago was almost "wide open" is nearer a closed basis, as far as liquor is concerned, than it has been in

EXTORTIONIST SENTENCED TO SAN QUENTIN

Robert Lufbery Is Denied Probation By Superior Judge James Allen

STRESSING THE psychological aspect in the case of Robert L. Lufbery, who has pleaded guilty to writing extortion letters to prominent Orange county citizens, Superior Judge James L. Allen today denied probation to the writer of psychological and mathematical works and sentenced him to San Quentin. The law prescribes a term of not more than five years.

Likening Lufbery's case to the famous Loeb-Leopold affair of recent years, in which a murder was committed as a "psychological experiment," Judge Allen declared that it was time that psychological experiments which lead to the court room should be stopped.

Lufbery had admitted in his confession to District Attorney Z. B. West Jr. that he was interested to a certain extent in the psychological reactions which would be produced by his threat letters. His main purpose in writing them, however, was to gain money for publishing and selling his works, he declared.

The probation hearing for Lufbery was launched last Thursday and, after all witnesses in the case had been heard, the court continued the matter until today for his ruling. Deputy District Attorney Sam L. Collins appeared for the people in the hearings while John Clarkson was appointed as counsel for Lufbery.

Lufbery's case was one of the most unique ever brought to light in Orange county. Although he has confessed to writing threat letters to C. C. Chapman, Fullerton capitalist; Frank Baum, Anaheim business man; C. C. McWhinney, wealthy Long Beach aviator; and other prominent people, he never realized a cent from his extortion activities, he told West.

His methods of operation were unusual, authorities here said, pointing to the fact that in many of the cases he directed his intended "victims" to put the "hush money" into a box which had provided and to drop it into the ocean from the end of a pier. Baum was directed to dig up the box from the sand at Huntington Beach and to put $500 in it. He was to drop it in the water at the end of the pier. The box was constructed of wood and had leaden plates fastened to each side with plaster of paris. A wooden plate on top also was fastened to the box with plaster of paris. In this was an eye through which the string was to be placed. Action of the water would loosen the plaster of paris and the string would separate itself, Lufbery thought. The lead would carry the box to the bottom but soon the plates would fall away as the plaster of paris disintegrated. The box would rise to the top, Lufbery had calculated the tides and currents accurately so that he knew where

FORMATION OF FIRE DISTRICT IS PROPOSED BY FARM CENTER

Possible formation of a fire protection district including Olive, Villa Park, El Modena and West Orange, in which the city of Orange might cooperate, was forecast today with the announcement that the question of circulating petitions among residents affected would be up for consideration at a meeting of the Villa Park center next Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

The movement was taken to signify a possible indication of a trend toward a general consolidation of fire districts throughout the county for the purpose of greater efficiency of management.

If the district is formed, its equipment would be stationed in Orange and the city would man it in case of fire, as well as keep it in serviceable condition, according to tentative plans. The Orange County hospital would be included in the district, thus giving to that

Condition Is Serious Says His Physician

Son Killed By Secretary Who Ends Own Life Sunday Morning

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.—(UP)—E. L. Doheny, sr., for years a dominant figure in the oil industry is in a critical condition here, suffering from shock caused by the death of his only son, E. L. Doheny, jr., murdered by a private secretary who then committed suicide. Detectives and policemen kept the curious out of earshot at the Doheny home while physicians attended the multimillionaire. Doheny collapsed when informed of the tragedy.

The condition of the elder Doheny was considered extremely grave in view of his 73 years. He had just participated in a fight against government charges of fraud in the leasing of the Teapot Dome, a scandal which involved Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior under President Harding.

A short time ago he returned believing his dreams of continued Doheny domination realized through his 36 year old son.

While doctors sought to save the aged father, the coroner's office was preparing for an inquest over the bodies of the son and of Hugh Plunkett, the secretary.

Officials and witnesses appeared agreed that the private secretary killed his employer and then himself when he suddenly went insane after a nervous illness over a period of several months.

Doheny, jr., was shot through the temple as he sat in a ground floor bedroom of his palatial home early Sunday. Plunkett, with a soft-nosed bullet through his brain, died in the hallway of the bedroom.

The widow, prominent in Southern California social circles, heard the shot that killed her husband, District Attorney Byron Fitts said today, but she believed the noise was caused by a piece of falling furniture.

She heard the second shot, as did Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh.

Dr. Fishbaugh, summoned in advance, arrived just after the first shot and in time to see Plunkett dart from the bedroom into a hallway, rush back into the room and slam the door.

An instant later, the second bullet was fired. Mrs. Doheny and Dr. Fishbaugh opened the door and found the two bodies.

As reconstructed by authorities, Plunkett, torn by the fear that Doheny and Dr. Fishbaugh would send him to a sanitarium for treatment, crept close to Doheny and shot him without warning.

As the body of the young millionaire slumped to the floor, Plunkett turned and ran, hoping to escape. As he opened the door however, he saw Mrs. Doheny and Dr. Fishbaugh, and returned to the bedroom for refuge.

Apparently he shot himself as the door swung shut.

Dr. Fishbaugh said Plunkett

Leaders In Needle Workers Demonstration Jailed By N. Y. Police

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Between 500 and 600 striking members of the Industrial Needle Workers union and their sympathizers engaged in a demonstration in garment area today which led to the arrest of between 400 and 500 of the paraders, including Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, noted Socialist and divorced wife of the philanthropist, J. G. T. Phelps Stokes.

Arrested with Mrs. Stokes and marching beside her was Adolph Wolff, 50, sculptor and writer and Jerry Romaine who gave the same address as did Mrs. Stokes, 1 Union Square.

The demonstration started aimlessly, to all appearances, and continued until the area from Seventh to Eighth avenues and from Thirty-sixth to Thirty-seventh streets was a whirling human maelstrom blocking traffic for hours.

Scores of police on strike duty began an organized attempt to crush the demonstration by picking off those on the outside of the whirling crowd. Mrs. Stokes, Wolff and the 9-year-old boy were among the first arrested.

The police marched the arrested demonstrators to the open prison at Jefferson Village. Hundreds stood

HOT DEBATE IS OPENED IN SENATE

Missouri Solon Says He Will Not Name Senators Who Vote Dry and Drink

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Prohibition will never be repealed until the moral forces of the country find a better way to control the 2000-year-old liquor evil, Senator William E. Borah, leading campaigner for President-elect Hoover told the senate today in answer to Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who characterized the law as "enthusiasm gone mad."

The two outstanding orators of congress and perhaps of the nation staged a famous debate over the issue argued in length in the recent presidential campaign, and crowds rushed the doors of the senate gallery to hear them.

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Borah-Reed debate on prohibition was opened before a crowded senate today when rising Sen. James A. Reed, Dem., Mo., the master of satire, attacked the existing prohibition law as "enthusiasm gone mad."

While Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho, the Republican dry champion, scribbled notes at his desk preparing to reply, Reed ironically told the senate how two women applicants for the Durant prohibition prize had suggested that prohibition law violators be dragged over the country with their tongues tied to airplanes and advising the government to distribute poison liquor through bootleggers so "only a few hundred thousands would die in order that the country would observe the law."

"If these diabolical suggestions were unusual would not take the time to mention them," said Reed, "but the spirit is abroad and people generally seem convinced with the idea that whatsoever could be done under any law is just and right and righteous. They believe law sanctions and justifies any cruelty."

"The Saviour of mankind was crucified according to the Roman and Jewish law. Joan of Arc was burned at the stake in accordance with the thing that was then called law. The British government dragged our ancestors across the sea to try them under British law."

"But those laws were atrocious and the penalties were outrageous. A few men in a legislative assembly cannot make wrong right or right wrong. The right way to proceed is to repeal an outrageous law and change the constitution."

"This law has introduced corrupting agencies and debased morals into the very political life of our country."

At the outset, while women in the galleries tittered, Reed said he wanted to correct the impression that he might name the senators and representatives who drank wet and voted dry. His statement Saturday to that effect had led to some uneasiness, he said.

"But I am not going to do it because I will not violate the confidence of my friends or the hospitality of my neighbors," he continued, "especially when they are trying to get a little sunshine out of life. I may have done many wicked things in my life but I have never sunk to the level of a prohibition informant."

Reed contended prohibition enthusiasts have even abandoned the Bible and reason in their efforts to enforce prohibition "using the law instead of the Christian's trine of kindness toward men."

Hundreds Gather For Departure Of Hoovers For North

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Hundreds of citizens of Miami gathered to say farewell to President-elect and Mrs. Hoover, when the distinguished guests of a month left here at 10:30 a. m., today, for Washington on a special Atlantic Coast Line train. Mayor Sewell of Miami represented the city.

The president-elect had one of the warmest days since his arrival for his departure for the cold of the national capital. A half hour stop is scheduled for Jacksonville, where the train arrives at 7:10 o'clock tonight for a change of crews. The train is due in Washington at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

1000 Attend Formal Opening Of New Art Gallery

LAGUNA BEACH EVENT DRAWS NOTED ARTISTS

LAGUNA BEACH, Feb. 18.—More than 1000 persons were present when the new gallery of the Laguna Beach Art association was opened Saturday.

Visitors registered from many points outside the state, as well as from many cities of Southern California, with artists of note among those present.

Though there was no formal program, brief remarks complimenting the art association on its perseverance and courage and achievement were made by Reginald Pollard of San Diego.

Annals A. Hills, president of the association, told of the trials and tribulations through which the committee had passed in its efforts to get the building erected.

Paintings covered the exhibit space and were the source of much interest. Pictures were hung in the lobby and in every available inch of space.

The overhead lighting system by which every painting receives proper lighting, and the other modern features of the gallery came in for a great deal of flattering comment.

Though the gallery was started at an estimated cost of $14,000, problems encountered brought the final figure up to $20,000, with the result that loans had to be negotiated and the association will make an unceasing campaign for funds with which to take up the indebtedness.

Merchants raised funds for a donation to the gallery at the opening, this cash taking the place of the bouquets which have been the customary offering at the opening of public buildings here.

U. S. To Regulate Foreign Aircraft Flights Over Canal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(UP)—President Coolidge signed an executive order today promulgating regulations governing flights of foreign aircraft over the Panama canal zone which hitherto have been prohibited.

All foreign aircraft flying over the zone must follow prescribed routes, and are subject to inspection by customs officials.

Carrying of arms and munitions of war is expressly prohibited.

Photographic equipment may be carried only on expressed authority of the governor of the canal zone.

A fine of $500 or one year imprisonment is provided for violation of the regulation.

get another. My feeling is so strong in the matter that I would file injunction proceedings should the council decide to sell the property."

Rutledge—"The tract would make a wonderful site for a federal building. The west half is not used much as a park and I think it would be to the advantage of the city to sell the piece and apply the sales money to the purchase of a larger tract."

Spicer—"It would be a mistake to sell the west half of the park. The park is too small, now, and it would be an aggravation were it smaller. It can be put to a more useful purpose than as a site for the proposed federal building."

Mrs. Tassman—"The full park site is needed and it would be a pity to sell the west half. I would be sorry to see the square divided."

Hoffman—"It would be a mistake to sell the property. As the city grows to be a real city, it would be the one open air space close by to which office girls and other office and store employees could go for brief restful periods in the open air."

Smith—"We should keep out pork. It would be a fine location for a postoffice, but the park is more valuable to the city in its present form than the property would be if decorated with a government structure."

Downing—"Sale of the property would be an excellent plan. It would be a choice location for the postoffice. Santa Ana needs a larger park, and money received by sale of the tract could be used to advantage in the purchase of a larger piece of ground for a park."

Gilbert—"The location is the proper site for the proposed federal building. The business section is moving in the direction of the park. We need a larger park."

seemed to have been in a highly nervous state for several weeks and Doheny had requested that he go to a sanitarium.

Late Saturday afternoon the physician visited the Doheny home and talked to Doheny, his wife and Plunkett.

After he left, Dr. Fishbaugh said, he received a telephone call from Doheny saying that Plunkett had gone but that he expected to return to the Doheny residence.

The secretary was a trusted employee and handled many of the personal and business affairs of young Doheny.

Plunkett had been in the service of the Dohenys for 15 years, originally being employed by the elder Doheny as a secretary and stenographer in the offices of the Mexican Petroleum company. He became private secretary of the younger Doheny eight years ago. He was seen constantly at young Doheny's side during the Teapot Dome investigation.

It was Doheny, Jr., who carried the famous "little black bag" containing $100,000 from New York to Washington and which was given to Albert Fall, then secretary of the interior.

Doheny was an only son. He was graduated from the University of Southern California in 1916 and joined his father in the oil business. He was president of the Temescal Petroleum company and vice president of the Petroleum Securities company. He recently became a member of the board of trustees of the University of Southern California.

He and Miss Lucy Smith were married in 1914. They had five children, the oldest being 14 and the youngest 2.

DYNAMITE TUNNELS DRILLED FOR DAM

exclusive right to tax automobiles, which, if it is "not guilty," would thus make up the loss of revenue caused by turning back utility property to counties.

Whether or not impeachment of Judge Hardy will be ordered by the assembly investigating committee empowered to conduct a probe during the recess, was to be decided at a meeting of the committee, headed by Assemblyman Walter J. Little of Santa Monica.

Mrs. McPherson will appear before the committee in person Thursday, and it is probable that the legislature will recess during the hearing in order to give all the members a chance to hear the famous auburn-haired evangelist.

If impeachment of Hardy is voted, the assembly names a board of managers to draw up impeachment articles, and present them to the senate.

The accused may enter his plea, which, if it is "not guilty," would require a two-thirds vote of the senate to convict. While the upper house sits as a high court, it is presided over by the supreme justice.

Conviction may bring about removal from office or any other state office "of trust or profit" or simply suspension for a certain period.

Only three times previously in California's history have impeachment proceedings been launched in the legislature. One of these, curiously enough, was against a Judge J. H. Hardy of Amador county, who was found guilty and suspended. This was in 1882, during the Civil war. The others were in 1857 against State Treasurer Henry Bates, who resigned as a result, and in 1915, against Judge John H. Childs of Del Norte county. The case against Judge Childs was finally dropped.

the box would come to the surface and where he could pick it up, he said.

He threatened to reveal supposed pro-German activities in the case of Baum, who once held a mortgage on Lufbery's property at Seal Beach. Lufbery said, however, that there had been no ill feeling between him and Baum as a result of the foreclosure of the mortgage. It was through his signature in Baum's possession that the first clew was gained.

He threatened to expose alleged counterfeiting activity of a "son" of Chapman if he was not paid $3,000. He since has admitted that the things he threatened to expose existed entirely in his imagination. When all else failed him he finally appealed to Chapman's sympathies, writing him to the effect that he had the influenza and needed money to get on his feet.

Lufbery was arrested by Robert Sandon, investigator for the district attorney's office. In the investigation carried on by West and Sandon the co-operation of Long Beach police authorities was of material assistance while the Anaheim police department also co-operated in the case.

A week ago, liquor flowed freely. It was to be purchased at dozens of places in the space of several blocks. Today the lid is on. The delicatessens, soft drink parlors, saloons, speakeasies, smoke shops, even the beer flats, are doing little or no business.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson's order to "clean out and stay that way" has had a far reaching effect.

The word passed along to the patrolmen has been: "Get out and do your work. If you don't do it well somebody will ask why and neither police nor record will save you from jail."

But police have not found out who lined up seven men and shot them down from the rear with machine guns and sawed off shotguns. They have not established definitely whether two or three of the men wore police uniforms. Whether actually the men drove away in a police car, equipped with siren and gong.

Persons near the shooting said two of the men who came from the garage wore police uniforms. Some of them said the outlaws Others said the speeding car obtained a clear path through traffic by sounding a siren, others said they failed to note that.

DECLARES LACK OF COURAGE IS FAILURE CAUSE

"Lack of courage, not lack of ability, is the cause of most failures in life," said Dr. F. W. Bales to an audience that filled the clubhouse last night. "Fear is the greatest obstacle to human achievement. It saps the strength, paralyzes the will, clouds the vision and keeps gifted people from launching into a successful career."

"Many ambitious men and women feel themselves capable of bigger things. They see others with less ability forge steadily ahead to success. They know they can do as well or better. Yet as long as fear rides in the saddle they will never throw themselves heartily into the real business of making money."

"Psychological tests prove that the child is born into the world with only two fears—the fear of a sudden loud noise and the fear of suddenly being dropped. All other fears are acquired during life, and are not a part of the nature. Sometimes the nervous, fearful attitude of the parents is caught by the child. Or he absorbs the mass fears of society as he grows up, so that gradually he becomes afraid to call his soul his own."

"Self-confidence is not heaven's gift to a favored few. It can be developed by any average man or woman who will master seven fundamental principles. Courage is man's birthright. It was intended to be his natural state. But we have buried it under a mass of acquired fears. It has been my great pleasure to see thousands of fear-ridden men and women shed their worries like an old ragged coat, and stand forth in a steel coat of perfect self-confidence that cannot be pierced. Only then have they gone on to real success."

FASHION SHOW UNDER WAY IN RANKIN STORE

Down-town shoppers today found a happy contrast to the dripping skies in the spring-like decorations of the Rankin Dry Goods store, where was celebrated the opening day of the annual spring fabric and fashion show, which will continue for the remainder of the week.

While every floor and department of the store is featuring new and attractive goods, decorative interest may be said to center in the first or main floor, where the lovely new fabrics themselves have been utilized as draperies. Printed chiffons and soft silks in a variety of bright colors and artistic designs away in graceful festoons from the pillars which are in turn, wreathed with peach blossoms.

The silks so used give a striking idea of what the new spring fabrics are like, and to heighten the decorative effect, the saleswomen have discarded the plain black or navy blue frocks that are the rule in the store, and have blossomed out like so many spring flowers, in bright colored costumes of silk or cotton print.

The idea in the costume change, is that each clerk will exemplify the possibilities of the fabrics shown, as well as the patterns by which the dresses were fashioned, and will be prepared to inform interested shoppers of the yardage required, patterns used and the cost of all trimmings and materials used. Any further information desired will be given by Mrs. Elizabeth Finch, an expert needlewoman who will be at the store for the entire week and by Miss Corinne Pennington, of the pattern department.

Each afternoon the young women of the dressgoods departments will present an informal style show, when they will utilize the long counters at the rear of the main floor for a promenade. This will be at 2:30.

Especially noteworthy among the new silks on display, are the Malinson and Cheney ensemble numbers in which the same designs and colors are to be found in satin-back crepe, georgette crepe and chiffon.

SALTY STARCH
If you add salt to your starch, your iron will not stick.

The new colors in Footwear are designed to harmonize with Spring costumes. Ask to see the new shades in Champagne.

This delightfully new buckle conceals a tiny elastic gore to prevent cutting the instep. All Patent with modish square toe.

TREBLE CLEF WILL REHEARSE ON WEDNESDAY

Attention of Treble Club members is called to the fact that the club's next meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, in the Santa Ana Conservatory of Music. All members are urged to be present. The change in date has been made so that the club's regular rehearsal will not interfere with the Santa Ana Cantando club's concert tomorrow night.

The Treble Clef club, women's choral ensemble of 30 members, so successfully heard in its initial public concert under Margherita Marsden's direction, in connection with Santa Ana Symphony orchestra's concert, January 31, has recently been formally organized. At its meeting last week, members of the board of directors and by-laws, submitted by its founder and advisor, D. C. Clanton, all members now connected with the club to be classed as charter members.

The club is now admitting new members and announces that charter admission will end March 1. After this time an admission fee will be charged, those desiring to be allied with the club. Anyone wishing to enter will be furnished blanks by the secretary, while a membership committee is also in charge to inquire concerning applicants.

While the club has only been founded several months, the fact that it has rapidly come to fill a place of importance in the musical life of this community was amply proven by many expressions of congratulations received from prominent local musicians and laymen following its recent concert.

The Treble Clef club now is prepared to consider outside engagements. It is one of many groups planning to take a very active part in the opening program of the National Music Week festival, to be held May 6. On this date a cantata will be presented in spectacular fashion in Birch park, at which time all singers of Santa Ana and Orange county will be invited to participate.

OUTAGAIN, INAGAIN ALL IN TWO HOURS
It took Lonnie Russ, 1220 East Second street, just two hours, after he got out of jail last night to get back in again.

He was released at 7 o'clock, when relatives paid the balance of a $25 fine imposed on him 10 days ago in the Tustin justice court on a petty theft charge, and at 9 o'clock, Officer E. E. Parry walked back into the jail with him and locked him up again.

The second charge is vagrancy. Russ was arrested near the Santa Fe railroad tracks by Officers Flower and Swain, members of the shotgun squad.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

MODEL AIRPLANE LEAGUE'S CORNER

BY MERRILL HAMBURG
Secretary, Airplane Model League of America

(Here is the first of the Register-20-30 club's articles on airplane model building. Mr. Hamburg, airplane model expert, is not only going to tell you how to build and fly models—he's going to answer your questions on plane construction. When you're up against a knotty problem, write to him and he'll help you solve it. Send the question, with a two-cent stamp for answer, to him at League headquarters, American Boy Building, Second and Lafayette Boulevards, Detroit, Michigan.)

(Copyright, 1929, by The American Boy Magazine, Detroit)

Ever build a model glider? The Register is going to tell you how to make one that, properly put together, will do more stunts than a monkey on a trapeze. It's the first of the articles that are to help you to become air-minded and it's a splendid one to start with, for it's both easy to construct and a lot of fun to fly.

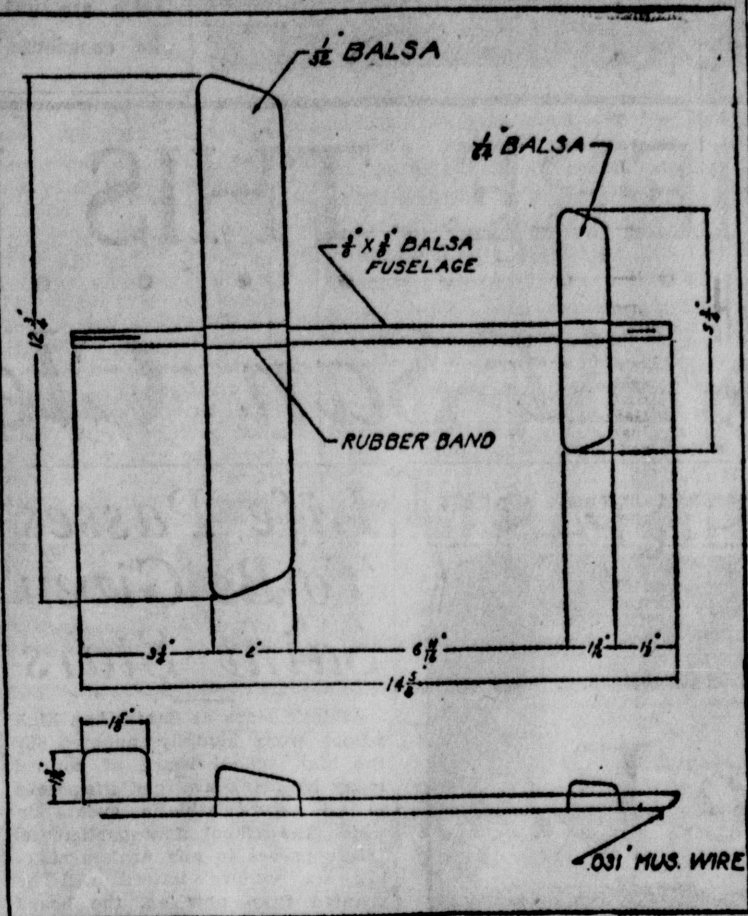

The glider is made entirely of balsa wood—a tropical wood that weighs only half as much as cork. Before you're finished building models you'll know a lot about balsa! Beyond balsa you don't need a thing except a little ambroid cement and two rubber bands. And for tools—a bit of sandpaper and a sharp knife. Simple, isn't it?

The glider has a 12 3/4 inch wing spread, and a length of 14 5/8 inches. The "fuselage" or body of the model—on a model with a motor you'll call this piece the motor stick—is of square balsa, 3/8-inch on each side; the wing, elevator and fin are flat balsa, 1/32-inch thick.

Arrange For Materials
Because balsa isn't always easy to get in small quantities, the 20-30 club has arranged with Henry's Cycle shop, at 427 West Fourth street, to handle kits containing the necessary materials for building the glider, at low price, to

Here Is Secret Of Skin Beauty

A wonderful discovery is the new French process which gives MELLO-GLO Face Powder its unparalleled smoothness and makes it stay on longer. The purest powder made—its color is tested. Never gives a patchy or flaky look! Will not irritate or clog the pores! Its youthful bloom stays on longer. Remember the name—MELLO-GLO. Santa Ana Drug Co.—Adv.

GLIDER DRAWING

Be sure you are familiar with every detail of these diagrams, and with all of the instructions. Then start building!

model builders. The kit for the all-wood glider costs 65 cents—and you'll find that it contains materials for a pusher as well as the glider. The Register is going to tell you just how to make that pusher next week, so save the extra materials.

Before you start building, examine the diagrams closely. Know every detail of them. Then take your fuselage, and sand it carefully to the proper size. Round off the lower corners, as the drawing indicates. Next, take the flat strip intended for the fins. Cut off a piece 13-16-inch by 15-8-inch—be sure your knife is very sharp. Round its upper corners, then embroid it carefully to the rear of the fuselage. The drawing shows the exact position. If you desire, you can cut a tiny groove into which to fit this fin.

Now you're ready for the wing.

The drawing gives you the dimensions and shows how to cut the ends. But there's more to it than that. The wing (and the elevator, too) have dihedral angle—that is, they angle upward from the center to form a very wide, flat V. This gives the model stability. If you're using the League kit, you get your wings already bent to the proper angle. If you're not, you must bend them yourself.

Use Steam Jet

One of the best ways to do this is with a steam jet from the spout of a sizzling tea-kettle. Hold the center of the wing (or elevator) in the steam jet until it's thoroughly saturated with the hot moisture. Then, you'll find, you can bend it easily. You've already marked on it just the place where you want the angle, so you bend it carefully and hold it until it dries. It will keep its shape, then!

Some fellows, in making this angle, like to lay one end of the strip flat on the table, and put a block 11-2 inches high under the other end. As the two ends are each to be 3/4-inch above the center, this allows the strip to dry in just the right position.

Go through the same procedure with the elevator, bending it to the same angle—you can improve the lightness and efficiency of the model incidentally, if you sand it to 1/64-inch.

Now, with two rubber bands, attach both wing and elevator to the fuselage. In the drawing, the wing is set for a long, even glide.

The ship's ready to fly!

You can do a lot of things with glider. You can send it sailing like a gull across a big vacant lot, finally to settle to earth lightly as a feather. You can make it climb or dive. To launch it, hold it in your hand with the elevator forward, your forefinger firmly at the rear end of the motor stick, thumb and second finger grasping it. Practice once or twice, and you'll know how much "horsepower" to apply to it. Don't try to throw it—a tiny push sends it scooting.

Move Wing Forward

Once you've made it sail satisfactorily, and know just where the wing belongs for a good glide, try a climb. Move the wing forward a little, send it off and—up she'll zoom. Then, to make a loop, advance the wing still farther. One boy, removing the elevator entirely and setting the fuselage, obtained four complete loops with his glider.

Some fellows like to use a rubber sling or catapult with gliders. To do this, they ambroid a hook of music wire (one ready-bent is included in the kit) to the lower forward side of the fuselage, one end set into the wood, as shown in the drawing. They set two stakes in the ground, three feet apart, and attach two strands of 1-8-inch flat rubber between them. Then they catch the glider hook over the rubber, pull back five or six feet, and release it! One plane I saw shot two hundred feet and climbed over a big church—that's what a good glider and a good catapult will do.

And you'll learn some new stunts of your own with the glider, too. Try it every way you can devise. You'll get a lot of fun out of building and flying it.

What's more, you'll be preparing yourself for the more difficult models The Register and 20-30 club are going to describe to you. The next one will tell about the all-wood pusher, the Tichenor Midget. Watch for it next week.

ALTERATIONS WILL COST CAFE $6000

Expenditure of between $5000 and $6000 for alterations is planned by Ketner's cafe, it was announced today by C. A. Lansdowne, of the construction company bearing his name. Work is scheduled to get under way Monday morning.

The cafe has secured a lease on the second floor and expects to establish a banquet there. A women's lounge will be situated off the banquet room.

It is planned to make the banquet room one of the most attractive in the district. The gold room will be redecorated and a new ventilating system installed.

$4000 JUDGMENT IS GRANTED TO MINOR

Margaret Haase, a minor, through her guardian, Marie Haase, had secured judgment for $4000 today against John and Helen Cameron at the termination of a case in Superior Judge E. J. Marks' court. The plaintiff sought $25,000 damages as a result of an automobile accident.

According to the complaint, the car in which the Haase girl was riding was struck by the Cameron machine at the intersection of Broadway and Los Angeles streets, Anaheim, on July 21, 1928.

John Martell and Franklin G. West, Santa Ana attorneys, appeared for the plaintiff.

OVER $100 STOLEN FROM GAS STATION

A burglar who broke into the El Toro service station, located at the intersection of the state highway and El Toro road, some time Saturday, stole more than $100 in cash, according to a report made to the sheriff's office today.

The money was cached in a secret hiding place, according to Bert Wilkinson, owner of the station, who did not discover his loss until the place was opened this morning for business.

Entrance into the service station was made through a window, which was jimmied.

SEEK LETTERS IN GERMAN'S ESTATE

The estate of a man who is believed to have died during the World war in Germany, between 1914 and 1919, and from whom his relatives in Anaheim and Fullerton have not heard for the last 19 years, was brought into superior court proceedings Saturday.

Caroline Engel, a daughter of Gustav Betke, deceased, asked the court for letters of administration in his estate. Bertha Parker, a daughter, of Fullerton, and Hilda Henry, a daughter, of Anaheim, are listed as heirs to the property, which consists of an interest in Anaheim real estate. The petitioner, Caroline Engel, resides in Pasadena.

BASEBALL TRAINING CAMP REAL GRIND

at a training camp. Players Eat Well Practice is usually over by 2 p. m., unless, of course, there is an exhibition game scheduled. The players then return to their hotel and they can do just about as they wish the rest of the day and night. The baseballists fare marvelously well in the way of board and ball clubs to allot $2.50 a day to keep. The Portland players, for example, put up at a high class hotel. Not more than two of them are quartered in the same room. The day when players were required to "double up" in one bed is gone. Twin beds for the athletes.

They eat off the "card" at the hotel or some specified eating house and that means two big meals a day in style. Lunchtime comes when the players are at the ball park and there they fare sumptuously enough after practice on sandwiches and bottled milk or buttermilk that is brought to them. They even have pie!

Once it was customary for baseball clubs to allot $2.50 a day to each player as "eating money" and let him dine at the hotel or some restaurant. But for various reasons the policy has been abandoned. One was that certain athletes, far from going on an eating spree, would actually half starve themselves to save part of the ration money. Then there was the other type of hungry fellow who would eat too much for his own good.

No baseball player is paid for his services in training camp. He gets all his expenses paid, however, and that is a big item. But how the boys look forward to their first pay check, due two weeks after the opening game.

NEW CHOW STRAIN ADDED TO KENNELS

Dog fanciers aware of the fine strains of Chows, wire-haired fox terriers and Scotch terriers to be found at the Newhope kennels, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson at their ranch on Newhope road, will be interested in learning of the new Chow strain to be introduced in the kennels by the recent purchase of Shasta Ting-a-ling, a registered male which Frank Johnson, son of the home, secured while on a recent visit in San Francisco.

Frank Johnson returned a few days ago from a two weeks' visit in the northern city with his brother, Dr. Carl Johnson, and his bride. Dr. Johnson formerly lived in this city where he has hosts of friends who were much interested in his recent marriage.

During the northern visit, the Santa Anan purchased four female Chows in addition to Shasta Ting-a-ling, to add to the collection at the kennels.

PAIR ARRESTED ON POSSESSION CHARGE

Two men, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, were arrested at the Sunset Barbecue stand, Seal Beach, Saturday night by F. W. Howard, chief criminal deputy sheriff, and are being held in the county jail.

The men are Benny Young, 25, 1838 Garvita street, Long Beach, and Harry Rader, oil worker, also of Long Beach. Only a small amount of liquor was found, it was said.

Draws Suspended Jail Sentence On Disorderly Count

Jack Edwards, 31, service station operator at Sixteenth and North Main streets, was given a 90-day suspended jail sentence and a fine of $25 in Judge J. F. Talbot's court Saturday on a plea of guilty to a disorderly conduct charge.

Edwards was accused of stopping an automobile on Spurgeon street, occupied by Mrs. G. F. Hostick, and attempting to climb into the car.

For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you. Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. AERO CLUB OF ORANGE GIVEN PLANE MOTOR

ORANGE, Feb. 18.—The Aero club has received a 450-horse-power motor given by the Bureau of Aeronautics and brought here last week by Alden Melzian and Pleasant Bakenhus, members of the club, who went to North Island, San Diego, to get it.

The motor is a Liberty and is practically new, having been used but 140 hours when it was timed and tested in 1923. It is a 132-cylinder model and is complete with the exception of exhaust stacks, a propeller and radiator.

The motor will serve to acquaint members of the club with the workings of motors used for airplanes. While the motor may be placed in a machine, under the conditions of the gift the plane must not leave the ground. Motors of the sort are given for study only. The motor is being placed on testing blocks. The club expects to receive a plane soon. It is probable that the machine will be a navy plane three or four years old. The motors and planes are given clubs or organizations which can prove their qualifications for the gifts.

Male or Female, ages from 10 to 55, no restrictions as to travel, residence or place of death—WITHOUT MEDICAL EXAMINATION.

Organized under the laws of the State of California and operated under the supervision of the Insurance Department of this State.

WHAT IS THIS INSURANCE PLAN?

The Oldest Form of Insurance Known—Purely Mutual

Is plain old-fashioned life insurance, without frills. Leaves out such items as cash values, extended values, and paid-up insurance values, which represent such a large part of the premium of the usual investment form of life insurance, but which add nothing to the value of the policy to the insured at death.

Is sure protection, at cost. You make your savings in any of the various ways offered in this day and age which pay a higher rate of interest return than investment life insurance.

IS NON-MEDICAL, REQUIRING ONLY A STATEMENT OF FIRST CLASS HEALTH AND PHYSICAL CONDITION

Is incontestable from date of issue except for suicide first year or for fraud. It is free from restrictions as to residence, travel, occupation, place or manner of death. Members are not liable for any debts of the Association. The only obligation is to pay the dues and Death Claims. Failure to pay such, lapses the insurance and terminates membership in the Association.

Is offered as additional low cost protection to those already carrying life insurance, and as a much needed form of protection to those who feel themselves unable to carry the higher priced forms of investment life insurance. Is heartily approved by bankers, professional and business men and women.

Can You Afford To Pass Up This Opportunity?

Are your wife and family protected, or will they have to pay in sacrifice for your neglect? This announcement is of great importance to you—if you have a family—wife and little children—a mother grown old, or a father enfeebled by age.

It is an unpleasant thought but one that none of us can escape—if you have failed to provide for that great emergency that so often leaves families destitute and forces them immediately out into the world to find some way to meet their bills, before they have fully recovered from their altered condition.

If the unexpected should happen, wouldn't it be a splendid thing to leave them enough to safeguard their independence during that heart-breaking period of readjustment? So that she will not be broken down by the burden of debt that so often follows the blow of death. Why not bridge that gap now, in advance, for her sake?

Addresses Heard Yesterday In Santa Ana Churches

REV. SCHROCK GIVES INITIAL LENT SERMON

"The Divinity of Christ According to the Gospel of John" was the subject of the sermon in the First Congregational church yesterday morning. The minister of the church, the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, announced that it was the first of a series of Lenten sermons from the Fourth Gospel. Each Sunday morning from now until Easter he will give a message from the Gospel of John. The sermon yesterday was introductory to the whole series. Mr. Schrock said, in part:

"John was a modernist of his day. He did what the modernist of every day tries to do—interpret Jesus in the terms and vocabulary of his day. John was trying to interpret Jesus to two distinct groups of people—both Jewish. The first was a group who held the Alexandrian theology. This was an heretical group who had practically discarded the old Jewish hope of the Messiah and had made the Logos the center of its philosophy. This Logos had a variety of meanings. He was an intermediary between God and his world. He was the man who was the immediate image of God, the prototypal man in whose image all other men were created. He was the mind of God going out of itself in creation."

"The second group that John wanted to reach was the orthodox Jews. Those who were expecting the coming of the Messiah—the anointed one, sent of God to redeem and restore Israel."

"John said to both these groups that Jesus was the incarnation of what one meant by the Logos and the other meant by the Messiah. The Word (Logos) became flesh and blood, and lived for a while among us, abounding in blessing and truth, and we saw the honor God had given him, such honor as an only son receives from his father."

"It is interesting to see the evidence that John brings forth to support his claim for the divinity of Jesus. He does not base it upon the birth of Jesus. He does not relate the birth stories. He bases his claim entirely upon the quality and power of Jesus' life. In him was a power and beauty of life that attracted men in a wonderful way. He had a remarkable insight into life and a keen sense of moral and spiritual values. He was dominated by a will to serve. All of the miracles that John relates are those performed in order to serve the needs of men. He was completely loyal to truth. To this end was I born and to this end I came into the world, that I might bear witness to the truth." He has a spiritual leadership that could only be adequately expressed by such terms as Bread of Life, Water of Life, Light of the World. Because of all these qualities of life He is a revelation of God himself. These are divine qualities—we know nothing more God-like."

"Now John's interest was entirely practical, not speculative. These have been recorded so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and through believing you may have life as His followers. You may have life, that is the whole point. John wanted to have the followers of Jesus have the same qualities of life that Jesus himself had."

"What does the divinity of Christ mean for us today? We are not interested in the Logos or the Jewish Messiah. But we are interested in the thing that was back of both of these beliefs. It was the fact that God should come into contact with his world and with his people. That for us he did in Jesus. The divinity of Jesus means for us that he had a quality of life that is the most divine thing we know. And if that has any meaning at all it is that, that we also may have that quality of life that we call divine. We want to have life as his followers. That is what Jesus himself thought. I came that they may have life and have it abundantly," he said. Let us dare to believe with Paul, 'All things are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's.'"

EARLY RETURN OF CHRIST SEEN BY DR. WEBBER

Dr. E. F. Webber, evangelist, delivered the sermon in the Gospel tabernacle of the Christian Missionary and Alliance church last night. His subject was "Fifty Bible Signs Recently Fulfilled that Prove Christ Will Soon Return," and he approached the topic by consideration of the Jew.

He said, in part:

"Jerusalem has been destroyed 14 times and each time it has raised its head to life again. God said He would give Jerusalem to the Jew, the chronological date that He gave in the Bible was the year 1917. At that time the Turk was in possession of Jerusalem, but God in His Word tells us just how Jerusalem would be restored. Isaiah said 2700 years before in Isaiah 31:5 as birds flying, so will the Lord of Hosts defend Jerusalem defending them also He will deliver it, and passing over He will preserve it."

"This is just what happened, but how did the prophet know it 2700 years before it took place? For 400 years no Jew ever walked on English soil—they had been banished. England had persecuted the Jew who would have ever thought that England would be the nation that God would use to deliver Jerusalem to the Jews? How did the prophet know that there would be airplanes in 1917 used for war?"

"General Allenby and by the way, Allenby means God's man, was sent by parliament to take Jerusalem, he arrived at the Holy City but did not want to fire on the Holy city for fear of bringing the indignation of the Christian world upon himself, he cabled parliament. It replied, 'use your own judgment.' He wired King George and he replied, 'Pray.' They Allenby ordered a squad of airplanes to fly over the Holy city. They flew over the city and the Turks surrendered without the firing of a shot, fulfilling the prophet's words, as birds flying. God defended, preserved and delivered the Holy city. Today the return of the Jews to Palestine reads like a fairy tale. Millions of dollars from the nations have been given to help him in the return and for the first time the Jews have their own flag."

Dr. Webber read these two Scriptures, Luke 21:28: "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads: for your redemption draweth nigh;" and Matt. 24:33, 34: "So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors. Verily I say unto you, this generation shall not pass away till all things be fulfilled." The evangelist then showed how the generation that is

TEMPTATION OF CHRIST TOLD IN TRINITY CHURCH

The significance of Christ's temptation in the wilderness was the theme to which the Rev. William Schmooch, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, devoted his sermon yesterday.

His sermon, in part, was as follows:

"In His temptation in the wilderness, Christ did not meet Satan in His divine power, but He met him as man, as the second Adam. Jesus here speaks and acts like a man. He puts Himself under God's Word and He uses the Bible as His weapon, just as we are compelled to do when Satan attacks us."

"In his attack upon Christ Satan would cause Him to doubt God's solemn proclamation: 'This is My beloved Son.' He uses pious language to fill the Savior's heart with sinful cares; he misquotes Scriptures to prompt Christ to tempt God; he offers Him the glories of the world at a tremendous price. Moreover, Satan assailed Christ after a fast of 40 days in the dismal surroundings of the wilderness. And to this very day Satan avails himself of just such favorable conditions for his attacks upon us."

"Christ was truly tempted, and He suffered in His temptation, Heb. 2, 8. We are unable to imagine how much the Holy One suffered in those trying hours."

"In His temptation Jesus is not merely a model for us. He is more, He is our Substitute."

"Satan is our accuser, Rev. 12, 10, and without a Savior he would have a clear and strong case against us. Christ must act as our Substitute, 2 Cor. 5, 21. He must silence the accuser, Ps. 8, 2: 'That thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.' That is why the Spirit led Him to the battle-ground right after His entrance upon His public ministry."

"Jesus is the Stronger Who came upon the Strong One."

"In His temptation He proved His superiority. Christ was made perfect in His temptation, Heb. 2, 10. Also subsequently He continued to conquer the devil, even so in His last bitter sufferings and death. If He alone had been concerned, He would have made quick work with the devil, but He acted as our Substitute. He took his suffering upon Himself to vanquish the devil in our stead. He is now the Author and Captain of our salvation. The devil can no more accuse us, Rom. 8, 33, 34. In our trials we have in Jesus a mighty Helper."

"Such is the significance of Christ's temptation in the wilderness. We have solid comfort. Let us rejoice in Him who defeated Satan that we might be the ransomed of the Lord."

SERMON SERIES IS OPENED BY REV. HARDING

The Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene Fifth at Barton street, is giving a series of Sunday morning sermons under the general topic of "The Christ We Forget." These messages have to do with the life and times of Jesus.

Yesterday morning the Rev. Mr. Harding delivered his eighth sermon in the series using as his subject "The Unchangeable Christ."

The pastor has announced that he will likely continue these Sunday morning subjects over Easter Sunday, including the resurrection.

In the message yesterday, taking for a text Hebrews 13:8, the pastor showed how that the Christ of yesterday, who walked with Enoch, talked with Abraham, appeared unto Moses, revealed unto Isaiah, wrestled with Jacob, walked with the Hebrew children through the fiery furnace, is the Christ of today.

That the Christ tempted in the wilderness, who walked the shores of Galilee and called humble fishermen and made them his messengers of peace, who calmed the troubled sea, spoke those marvelous parables, wrought miracles, is unchanged by creeds and dogmas of men.

His words remain the same: "Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." "In my Father's house are many mansions; 'I go to prepare a place for you; 'Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away."

"His power is the same. Go tell that backslider that the Christ who sent tender words to a wavering Peter still has power to save and keep. Say to those who weep o'er new made graves that He who said, 'I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in Me though he were dead shall live again; 'I am He that was dead but am alive forever more and hold the keys of death and hell."

"Jesus Christ, the same unchanged by the ages past, or the eternities to come, blest forever."

At the close of the message nine new members were received into the church, bringing the new membership for this year to 35.

The Rev. Mr. Thaker, a missionary from Mexico, gave an informative talk on his experiences while in the mission fields.

Two pleasing piano selections were given by Miss Virginia Adams and Gilbert Lee Bradford delighted guests with several readings.

The earliest schools in America were predominantly religious, according to Dr. George A. Warner, pastor of the First Methodist church, who told yesterday how the colonists brought their religious conception of education into the new world.

Excerpts from his sermon explain the European backgrounds of the transplanted American school, and he sketched the requirements and principles of the methods of Christian teaching and discussed the spirit of the early schools until the period of nationalization.

He said:

"The earliest schools in America were predominantly religious. The colonists, particularly in New England, brought with them to the New World not only their material possessions, but their religious idealism and their religious conception of education as well. Weddings
HouseholdSt. Johns-Cooper Wedding Is Lovely In Its Simplicity

Lovely in its very simplicity was the wedding of Miss Mae St. Johns, pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold St. Johns of West Ninth street, this city, and Harold Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cooper of Newport Beach, that took place at the home of the bride's parents on Friday night.

Miss St. Johns' charm was enhanced by her becoming wedding gown of blue georgette that was worn with accessories in harmonizing colors. She carried a bouquet of pale pink rose buds and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ruth Breckenridge, who was the bride's only attendant wore a frock in wine color with accessories to match.

The beautiful marriage service of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. W. J. Hatter, rector of the Church of the Messiah, before an improvised altar of spring flowers that had been arranged for the occasion by the bride's mother.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. St. Johns were hosts at a delightfully appointed wedding dinner. A profusion of white sweet peas and maiden hair fern were used in decorating the table.

Following a short honeymoon trip over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are now established in their pretty new home at Newport Beach where Mr. Cooper is in business with his father.

The young people are planning to take their wedding trip later in the spring when they will go to Wyoming, Mr. Cooper's former home.

The bride is a graduate of the Santa Ana high school, as is her husband, and she is a popular member of Santa Ana's younger social set.

Presentation of Program
To Conclude Student Loan Campaign

Launching an extensive campaign next week, committee leaders hope to bring to a successful close the Student Loan fund drive with the presentation of a varied program by Santa Ana high school and junior college talents next Friday night in the high school auditorium.

The city Parent-Teachers association is sponsoring a drive to raise $2500 to be loaned to worthy junior college graduates who wish to attend college and have not the means to complete their education.

All city schools and organizations are to co-operate next week by means of donations, entertainments, and penny drives.

E. M. Nealley, chairman of the student loan committee, said today, "If this fund can receive $2500 each year for the next three years, we believe the fund will become self-sustaining and there will be money on hand at all times thereafter to meet the needs of all graduates of Santa Ana junior college who want to go on with their education." The committee in charge believes that there are 100 people in Santa Ana and vicinity who would pledge $10 annually for three years for this cause. The rest of the money could be raised from other sources.

Representatives from the high school boys' federation will visit all grammar schools of the city this week and explain the loan system and inaugurate a penny drive.

The Santa Ana Book Store now has tickets on sale for the entertainment, to be presented at the high school next Friday night. Tickets may also be secured from P.-T. A. presidents of the city schools.

Edward Gerhardt and Ernest Trickey, popular junior college students, are to present a ventriloquist act. The college men's chorus of 36 voices and the college women's chorus of 26 voices will entertain.

The high school orchestra under the direction of S. J. Mustol and the high school glee clubs are also scheduled to render numbers. One feature of the evening will be a group of songs by the college men's quartet, according to Myrtle Martin, who is in charge of the musical part of the entertainment.

The one-act play, "Evening Dress Indispensable," will be given by students of the college drama classes with the following cast: Roberta Eley, "Alice Waybury"; Corinne Nelson, "Shiela Waybury"; Paul Spaeth, "Geoffrey Connaught"; Keith Trickey, "Geoffrey Chandler"; Clara Kate Owens, "Nellie."

The P.-T. A. Finance committee is composed of Mrs. Mac O. Robbins, Mrs. W. W. Hoy, Mrs. James H. Harding, Mrs. Roy Beal and Terry Stephenson. Those who are on the student loan committee are E. M. Nealley, chairman; Mrs. Robert Northcross, Mrs. John Tessenmann, D. K. Hammond, and Mrs. Roy Beal, president of the P.-T. A.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

Stirred by the expulsion from various universities and colleges of students who marry while in school, several college papers attempt to find out from the "raccoon men" and co-eds themselves how much, if any, their collegiate careers are hampered or helped by matrimony, and whether they believe the expulsion for marriage rule is just.

It's the same old story of human sophistry in the results. The married students insist that marriage only spurs one on to greater scholastic activity, knowing that knowledge means good jobs which are essential to the married state. The singletons insist that matrimony but acts as a distraction from collegiate activities.

You pay your money and you take your pick!

JUST ONE OF 'EM!
Mrs. Martha Bradley of Upton Station, Virginia, poured some kerosene on her coal fire the other day and set the can on the floor near the stove. It exploded, and set fire to the housewife's clothing. She died before help could reach her.

Mrs. Bradley is just one of the thousands of unsung home heroines who are sacrificed yearly to the makeshift methods of their home; just one of the housewives running one of the thousands of homes utterly bare of the safety devices and conveniences of a modern era. Sometimes a money lack explains it; sometimes a husband who sees no reason why a woman today should have it any easier than "my mother and my grandmother" did.

HERO SOMETIMES
Seaman Walter Trettin of the good ship "America" did his bit in rescuing drowning men from the freighter "Florida." He came to New York's wild enthusiasm over the heroes of the sea and was met with a warrant for his arrest on a charge of deserting his wife and four-year-old son.

And yet there is nothing so queer about that. Trettin isn't the first human who measures up pretty well in one situation and falls down in another. It's one thing, too, to rise to high moments; it's another thing to endure the sameness of the commonplace.

FUNNY?
Cosmo Hamilton, author, believes that artists should be governmentally endowed in order to create. If an artist is single, he says, he should not have more than $5000 a year; if he's married, he'll need at least $100,000, which is probably an example of high humor.

who said that SUGAR spoils the complexion?
Good food promotes good health

WHERE do all the food and dieting fads come from? As an eminent medical specialist says, "Of all the fads which have afflicted mankind, none seems more difficult to explain than the desire of American women for the barber pole figure."

There's another prejudice that to us seems equally wrong. It is that sugar in the diet ruins the complexion. That isn't true. Overeating of any food might easily impair the health and the complexion. And so might under-eating. Girls, women and men should not starve themselves in order to reduce weight. A study of the workers in 25 eastern department stores revealed that much of the illness was due to poor nutrition, especially to the neglect of a suitable noon lunch. You cannot starve yourself and keep well, or keep your good looks. Eat a variety of foods, regularly, and remember that nothing takes the place of sugar for making other foods enjoyable. Sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. Eat cereals, grapefruit, and all kinds of raw, fresh and canned vegetables and fruits, sweetened for enjoyment. Complexion is a question of health and healthful eating. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

The Bidding: South bids no-trump and all pass.

Deciding the Play: West leads Jack of spades and East covers with Ace of spades. East plays 6 of spades which is won by South. South now plays Jack of clubs which West covers with Queen of clubs. What card should be played from Dummy?

The Error: This trick is won with Ace of clubs and then King of clubs is played. The remaining three clubs are sacrificed and game is lost thereby.

The Correct Method: Declarer is certain of making the following tricks: two in spades, two in hearts and one in diamonds. To frame, declarer must make four club tricks. By refusing to take the first trick whether covered by Queen or not, the remaining four club tricks will in all probability be established.

The Principle: When holding a suit containing Ace, King and three small cards in closed hand or vice versa, four tricks may be made by ducking the first trick played.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

OLD FASHIONED, BUT SO GOOD!

Years ago many families in small towns or the country thought that winter supplies were not complete if a small barrel of sauerkraut were not put down.

While home-made sauerkraut is passing, along with bread baking and stocking knitting, it is none the less a delicious food when properly prepared.

Before going ahead with the recipe for the day I want to draw your attention to the health values found in sauerkraut.

Its bulk is one point in its favor, while its mild acids and mineral elements react favorably in the digestive tract.

Some food authorities attribute the robust health of certain of the European countries to intensive use of sauerkraut. It isn't often we can eat what we know to be good for us and at the same time find the flavor palatable—sauerkraut seems to be the exception.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Sauerkraut Pie

2 quarts sauerkraut
1/2 pound chopped beef
1/2 pound lean fresh pork
4 medium sized potatoes
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper.

If you object to the too salty taste of sauerkraut "as is," rinse lightly in cold water, drain and cook tender in a small amount of water, cooking it with the lid off to permit evaporation; thus the valuable mineral elements are saved and not poured as a libation to the kitchen gods.

For baking purposes select a dish about 2 inches deep and 2 quarts large. Put first a layer of sauerkraut, season with black pepper, and over it put a thin layer of the beef and pork, ground together. A second layer of sauerkraut and another of the meat should use up all of each. Gauge the size of baking dish to do so.

The potatoes are boiled and mashed, seasoned with butter, pepper and salt, but not with milk—they make the crust and must not be moist.

Arrange them over the meat and make in a moderate oven for 1 hour. Serve the pie from the dish.

If you possess a potato ricer, rice the potatoes directly over the prepared pie, dot lightly with tiny bits of butter, a dash of pepper and salt—and try that way for a

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—MRS. CHARLES MORGAN, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

THE FLYING FLEET FORMS WALKER BILL

Sky-riding over the blue Pacific, dashing and darting through sensational maneuvers "up above the world so high," the flyers of Uncle Sam's navy execute all manner of hair-raising stunts in "The Flying Fleet" which opened yesterday at the Walker theater, with Ramon Novarro, romantic hero of the films, as one of the intrepid airmen.

Continuing the air motif of the picture, Fanchon and Marco present one of the most delightful "ideas" imaginable in their "Gobs of Joy," staged apparently on the deck of one of the big "battle-wagons." Pat West, "admiral of jester and gob of fun," is a show in himself, and when aided by half a dozen clever dancing teams, the champion buck dancer of the Pacific fleet, pretty Dolly Kramer, a blue-singing "petting" officer—well the vaudeville simply can't be appreciated, and there is only tonight left in which to see it, more's the pity, because tomorrow Conrad Nagel and June Collyer come to the Walker screen with "Let's Make Whoopee" and the vaudeville bill changes also.

RUSSIAN CHOIR WILL SING AT SPURGEON

Anything that can stand the test of public approval for over 75 years must be worth while, according to the management of Yost Spurgeon theater, who feels that in offering the Agrenova-Slaviansky Royal Russian choir to Santa Ana music lovers on Wednesday night, he is bringing a musical organization of high standing, that has been supreme for fully that length of time.

Advance ticket sales opened last Friday at the Yost Broadway theater, and seats may be obtained there daily, or at the Spurgeon theater box office Wednesday night. The program to be given here is a varied one in which quaint Russian folk songs, popular ballads and musical numbers typical of Russia, will be interspersed with English numbers and a varied bill of Russian dances and orchestral numbers.

UNDERWORLD SHOWN IN EXCITING TALE

Rather an unusual twist is given the current picture, "Gang War," at Yost's Broadway theater, where the lurid tale of the underworld and its feuds, is preceded by a newspaper office prologue (on the screen). The prologue shows a newspaper office with a city editor, frantic at the scoops that rival papers are putting across in the wholesale killing of two rival factions of bootleggers.

One of two reporters detailed to get the inside story of the death of the two leaders, succeeds in clever fashion, and the picture is self a tale of the story that

THE KNYMITES

STORY & ILL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tines took the great big fish and Clowny promptly said, "I wish that I could do the cooking. I am good, and that's no joke. Just keep the blaze roaring high. My cooking art I then will try." Then Scouty cried, "Oh, no!" The fish will all go up in smoke.

"Don't argue," cried the old Sea Man. "I'll cook it. I am sure I can. The rest of you just sit around and don't run shy on wood." He scaled the fish and did it slick, and then he hung it on a stick. The stick he held right over the fire and said, "I'll be real good."

It wasn't long till all the bunch sat down to have a real good lunch. The Sea Man said, "Now watch this trick." He stood and shook his head, and then he waved his hands in air. What happened gave the lads a scare. All of a sudden, in his hands, appeared a loaf of bread.

They ate fish sandwiches galore and everyone cried out for more. When everyone had had enough, the Sea Man said, "Let's see. I think we'll rest awhile, and then I'll show you something new again. When I start out a-walking, you can all just follow me."

In just a little while he jumped and down the hill he gaily thumped. The Tines and the Trouble Tots were close upon his heels. "Oh, this is great," one Tiny said. "The wind feels good upon my head, but I would rather travel in a little cart on wheels."

Just then the Sea Man said, "Look there! Those are big locks up in the air. Now I'll explain just what locks are. No knowledge do I lack. A stream, you see, flows down below. It's also up above, you know. But it is deeper up above. The big locks hold it back."

(The Trouble Tots play a trick in the next story.)

To watch the corn grow, or the blossoms set; to draw hard breath over plowshare or spade; to read, to think, to love, to pray—these are the things that make men happy.

CRYING AGAINST TAXES

A writer in the interest of the motion picture industry is trying to arouse public opinion and sentiment on behalf of the "unjustly" taxed members of the film industry.

The argument the writer advances is that the high pay of the film workers is only temporary, does not last more than eight or ten years, that the tax reports of the government are complicated, and that the film stars do not understand arithmetic, and some of them are taxes on back pay because of failure to make out proper reports until, we should judge, some of them are near starvation's door because of the terrible tax man.

We understand, but do not quite sympathize with this point of view. The tax report appears on the surface to be a complicated blank, but when one has little if anything but earned salary to report, it is not difficult to make out. Its difficulty under any circumstances lies mainly in the effort one puts forth to keep his taxes down as low as possible. We are reminded of a question that was asked of a tax expert who was explaining the law just after the first blanks were sent out. The question was, "Is it not a difficult law to understand and a difficult blank to make out?" The reply was, "No, it is not so difficult unless you are trying to beat it."

Representatives of the government are always on hand to give help and men who have made a special study of tax reports are always available for employment by those who need them.

The salary which is suggested of some of these stars as "not more than $3000 per week" is sufficient, without more than three or four years, for any of them, after paying all their tax and necessary expenses, to have sufficient money to live off the income for the remainder of their life. Income is not taxed by the government but once, income on invested income of course is.

As an illustration of the injustice of the tax department's work, a case is cited where some movie star is being assessed $400,000 back taxes, and it is stated he has not that much money. If this amount is the back taxes, it must have been assessed upon income, and income that was not reported, for the taxes are but a fraction of the income.

We should like to see the income tax reduced. We have had to meet the payment of some back taxes at times. We have always found the examiners fair and the department willing to consider every claim made in any controversy. While there are some changes which we believe could be made in the law to the good of the service and interpretations might aid which would be more beneficial in equity, yet on the whole our income tax law and its operation in spite of all the fun poked at it, is a fair and just measure and well administered for the purposes of its enactment.

It is claimed that some big institutions whose taxes run into the millions have been especially favored by the department and that there has been secret conniving in the returns of vast amounts for some of these corporations. The justification for this claim has never been brought out other than the secrecy which surrounds all of the transactions. But speaking within the knowledge which we have, we have never seen serious ground for complaint either against the law or its operation.

A Detroit woman bandit used tear gas in a bank holdup the other day. Same old feminine formula: tears for money.

A THRONE IN FRANCE

There is some discussion of whether there is a possibility that Princess Clementine, widow of Victor Napoleon, has entered into an alliance with certain forces in France to place her son, Louis Napoleon IV, on the French imperial throne.

In the light of conditions as they have developed in Italy, Spain, and Russia, far be it from us to suggest that a throne may not be soon erected in France. But if it is erected with any degree of permanence, the one who wields the power will be the one who does the erecting.

Whether the spirit of democracy is increasing or decreasing, we have certainly reached the age when power can hardly be wielded simply because of the accident of birth and imaginary divine right. It must come because it has been grasped by the hand of him who has counted the cost and stands ready boldly to meet consequences and is able to contend. If Louise Napoleon IV ever is placed on the throne of France, and remains there long enough to warm the chair, it will be because he has earned it himself.

The tennis association has restored Bill Tilden to amateur standing. The association must have been watching his performance on the stage.

AN UNDERMANNED PROFESSION

Most professions are overcrowded today. Medicine, the ministry, the law, have innumerable candidates. But the report has gone out that the veterinarian is becoming extinct. The automobile has driven the horse off the road, and the profession of the veterinarian has had largely to do with horses. The situation, we are told, is becoming critical, and an organized movement has begun to gain recruits for a profession which still has a very wide field.

The bureau of animal culture of the National Department of Agriculture has issued a pamphlet calling attention to the great need of the veterinary profession. Dairying has become an increasing industry in this country. Hog raising is one of our most profitable undertakings. Poultry raising is increasing.

For all these and for many other lines in which animals are used, there is a field for the veterinarian. Horses are not so numerous as they once were, but they are by no means extinct. There will always be a need for a considerable number on the farm and in business. Domesticated animals in modern society are subject to diseases just as the human. To have some knowledge of the nature of these domesticated animals and the diseases to which they are subject, as well as the knowledge of how these diseases may be prevented and cured, is very necessary today when farm products and livestock are so needful to promote and continue our present prosperity.

The profession of the veterinarian has always been looked down upon. It has been socially declassé. But can anything more needful and more worthwhile be conceived of than the health of our animal life upon which so much of our well-being and comfort depends.

The father may be the head of the home, but mother usually is the receiver.

EVERYTHING THAT MONEY CAN BUY

Mme. Ganna Walska, certainly the most persistent of all modern concertizers, made her New York debut last week. The account of that concert as written by the music critic, Olin Downers, of the New York Times has just arrived. What must have been the singer's anguish when she read this account containing such exhortation as: "Also, with atrocious taste, she sang as an encore Liza Lehmann's 'If No One Ever Marries Me' while her husband listened in a box," and "For the greater part of the program Mme. Walska . . . did almost everything that a singer with a vivacious technical method could and should not do."

Possibly the reviewer's harshness was aggravated by the foreknowledge that Mme. Walska was acclaimed in Chicago for it is the New Yorker's self-imposed duty to show Chicago its "proper place" in the matter of artistic judgments.

The statement has been made that the secret of Mme. Walska's successes here and there and fiascos frequently is an overwhelming nervousness—that she becomes stage struck when she faces an audience. It is this reaction, it is said, that she has been gamely trying to overcome. From European cities, as from Chicago, reports have come of successful concerts which have pleased her audiences only to be followed by others similar to this one from New York.

Much that the New York reviewer says bears out this explanation of the lady's indomitable persistence. She is ambitious to sing and even the unfriendly reviewer said: "She showed inherent musical ability, and a voice which might have been the fitting instrument of artistic expression."

Most of the criticism is of errors of technique which would be manifestations of just such nervousness. "Her upper tones were hard and most of them off pitch. Her attack was uncertain, and scooping. Her tone was poorly focused and unsteady, so that at times and gratuitously, where the composer did not intend it, she produced a trill. Some tones were pinched and hard; others were soft and well-nigh inaudible. There was poor and unreliable 'breath support.' Phrases were chopped. One or two of them, as if by accident and in the trepidation of the moment were joined together where this was not strictly necessary."

Olin Downers says that the only possible explanation "lies probably in the impression received, of a singer who has never mastered the fundamentals of her task and who has leaped for glory before it was sensible or prudent to do so."

What could make a woman brave such criticism as this, and the laughter of the music world except some such aggravating affliction as such nervousness which presents a challenge?

After all, however, maybe this is just the report of one unfriendly critic, possibly others have acclaimed her New York concert. Again, maybe Mme. Walska has neither voice, technique, nor nervous affliction. But in that case she would be a foolish woman and we would sooner believe her courageous and indomitable and bravely persistent than foolish.

How Many Are a "Few"

Christian Science Monitor

How many are a "few"? Now we know! Thanks to Mr. Justice Hawkes. Webster defines "few" as "not many." No heresy here, nor, for that matter, much information. The erudite Oxford Dictionary goes a step further, "amounting to a small number." Yes, but how small?

But now comes Mr. Justice Hawkes of the King's Bench division. He was presiding during the taking of evidence recently when one of the London barristers was called from the room. A messenger soon popped into the room with word that the gentleman would return in a few minutes.

"Well, how many is that?" asked the judge.

"I don't think it will be more than twenty," the lad replied.

There followed one of those ominous moments when great decisions are made. "Twenty is more than few," decreed the judge. And then came the verdict which will echo down the corridors of time: "I think seven minutes is the end of a few!"

Now to our certain knowledge that one is one, and two makes a couple, we can add the fact that from three to seven are a few. But Mr. Justice, when does "many" end and become "a large number"? And what is the extent between "few" and "many" known as "several"?

And, by the way, Mr. Justice, how long is "after a while"? And how soon is "the near future"? Oh yes, and how far is a "stone's throw"?

Tourists Are Coming In Hordes

Pasadena Star-News

Tourists are coming to Southern California in large numbers. They will continue to come, say prominent railroad officials now in this section. It promises to be a record spring for tourist visitors. Leon M. Allen, vice-president passenger traffic manager of the Rock Island railroad says that the records of his road for the last few weeks show a large increase in travel to Southern California.

The tourist stream was interrupted for a time by the influenza epidemic, which swept over the country. But Mr. Allen, who is on a visit to Los Angeles, says that advance bookings and other indications point to the heaviest westbound travel in the history of the Rock Island road. He added: "The entire country is prosperous and prosperity always is reflected by heavy travel; I for one am glad to come here again; California sunshine is more than appreciated after a few weeks of the wintry weather in the mid-West and East."

The promising outlook for heavy spring tourist travel into Southern California is confirmed by Robert Creelman, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways, who also is visiting in Los Angeles. He says that in Canada interest in Southern California increases year after year. Many Canadians are coming down here this spring, he says.

These assurances are quite welcome to the Southland. This section is accustomed to hearing itself praised. But it does not take praise indifferently. It always is appreciative of the compliments that are given it by delighted tourists.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

TO A CAT

There is no reason I can find
That you should make me feel so small;
I have a fair to middling mind
While you have almost none at all.
No proud position do you fill
Your features are extremely plain
And yet I will beneath your chill Disdain.
At night I lie back in my chair
From all my work and worry free
And then I see that sneering stare
Which, from the hearth, you fix on me.
I know I should not strive to please
A dull, unpossessing cat
But I'm distraught and ill at ease
At that.
You have no power to decide
What I have done or left undone,
You're totally unqualified
For criticising any one.
I cannot tell why I should fret
At contumely and scorn from you
A mere abysmal brute, and yet
I do.
Some day when in those half closed eyes
I see that sinister regard,
To your annoyance and surprise
You'll land out yonder in the yard.
For praise or place I little care
From hope of fame I'm quite exempt,
But listen, cat! I cannot bear
Contempt.

Dr. Frank Crane's Friendly Talk

By Dr. Frank Crane

"X Y"

Last evening I finished reading one of the noblest chapters in the annals of mankind.

It is the story of Walter Reed, Dr. Lazear, an ex-lumberjack, and "X Y."

It is the story of the conquest of yellow fever, the terrible scourge of the South, by the American Yellow Fever Commission. Only man takes the yellow fever. Animals are immune. So, only upon man could experiments be made.

When a call was issued for someone to risk his life to prove that mosquitoes really carried the plague, a soldier stepped forward. He was just an American private, known to history as "X Y." At bottom, every great undertaking is supported by the "X Ys." Anonymous and unknown, they embody the virtues we hail in our heroes.

When we think of Valley Forge, we think of the firmness and courage of Washington. At Valley Forge, also, starved and froze the "X Ys" of the American Revolution, the unknown soldiers who held firm when others were finding fault, and traitors were getting rich selling food to the enemy.

When we think of the Panama Canal, we think of Goethals. Yet, in the tropic heat and the terrible odds of the undertaking, common "privates" without being even designated as "X Ys" showed the tenacity and fortitude that made the accomplishment possible.

In war, the searchlight is on the generals. They stand as representative of the heroism of common men, "X Ys," "Slims" of "The Big Parade."

We are so constituted that we have to embody every idea in a personality. We change England into John Bull and the United States into Uncle Sam.

And so every great undertaking has its representative personality, a symbol for "X Y."

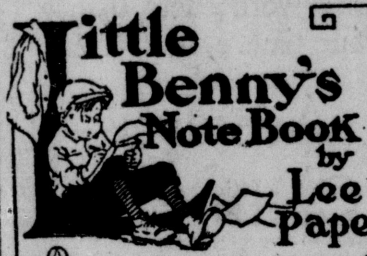

In applauding any hero, it is well to keep in mind that you are partly applauding him and partly applauding those unknowns, the "X Ys" for whom he stands a symbol.

When several stations consecrated tombs to the unknown soldiers then, for the first time in history, the heroism of the common man recognized.

We should bear in mind that no ocean liner sails gaily across the ocean with captain and officers upon her deck that does not also have some stokers in the hold that are working unknown and ignominiously. Every large household, splendid as it may be in its appointments, must have dish washers and floor sweepers. The pyramids are splendid achievements of the past, but they embody the blood and sweat of how many countless laborers!

Let us give a thought once in awhile to the unknown workers who never achieve notoriety while we applaud the heroes who have done some spectacular thing.

Uncommon Sense

BY JOHN BLAKE

SEEING THE WORLD

Shakespeare—or it might have been Ben Jonson—made one of his characters observe that "home keeping youth have very homely wits."

The advice was given to a young man to travel, which in his particular case meant to travel a few miles in Italy, and learn how people of other places conducted themselves.

Travelling to see the world today means not short journeys from town to town, but tours around the world, and often into the most remote places of the earth.

Seeing the world is important and useful.

Yet many people have seen a great deal of it—far more than have the travelled ones—without ever straying from their own firesides.

I have met and talked with a good many people who have made the trip around the world a number of times, and have discovered that they must have been blind to most of the interesting things to be seen.

I have met others who have found in their own neighborhood more startling and astonishing and fascinating things than the average person would see in 50 years of travel.

I still believe that travel is wise, and that all young people should get as much of it as possible, provided they really keep their eyes and their minds open as they go.

But I have in mind two boys whose parents recently took them on a tour of England and Scotland and France and Germany, and who returned with little more in their memories than the different kinds of dance orchestras they found in the various capitals, and the difficulty they had in getting low taxicab rates.

Those boys would have better been put to work in their father's business as soon as they had the elements of a common school education.

They could have got little more out of their journey through colleges than they did from their tour through Europe.

There is plenty to see to think about within an hour's walk of anybody's habitation.

There is nothing to see in the wide world if one will not see it. Today thanks to books and news reels one can gain a pretty good idea of this world of ours without journeying far.

But if he is the sort who can really see and understand what lies about him, the more he travels the better.

If he is the other sort, he might as well stay at home and devote his efforts to the things he likes best, for there is not much chance that he will grow mentally, though he ranges the whole world round.

I am still a firm believer in travel—for observers.

But for those who will not see—which means that they will not think—all the steamship and airplane and railroad lines might as well never have been invented.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

FLOOR TOYS

Children love to play on the floor. Perhaps because the earth was the first playground they cling to it first and the floor as being its close relative, comes next. Certain it is they love to play on the floor.

It is possible to let them have a playroom with a polished floor that is delightful. A rug that can stand hard wear can be laid down as needed but the bare floor is the first necessity.

Many houses have a fine cellar floor. A concrete floor, heated in cold weather. Fine. The children can play marbles, checkers, hop scotch, build house of blocks, splash their water toys, skate, sweep, bowl, shuffle, play ball, do about anything that an active child can do, and it is within his own domain.

Of course an attic will do as well, if the grownups are willing to allow the old things stored there to be used as impulse directs. An attic full of costumes of a by-gone day, old books, furniture, rags, odds and ends, luggage, ropes, junk, is a treasure-grove. But these are scarce and for the favored few now-a-days.

But everybody has a floor that can be cleared for a little while each day to let the children play. Big books are to be spread on the floor and the reader lies flat to devour them. A sheet of black-board cloth stretched and tacked down firmly in one corner of the room is a great source of enjoyment to children of all ages. They will lie on their fronts and draw pictures, designs, maps, scrawls, by the hour. And it will do them much good. Heavy blocks that can be shoved and pushed into place and stay where they are put for a while, are an everlasting source of fun and profit for floor play.

Maps and puzzles can be spread on the floor. Journeys and adventures can be traced and built on the maps. Balls can be rolled and bounced, and chased on the floor.

Place a child on the rug with a book and let him alone and he will be twice as content as he would be if you had placed him at a table. He has to sit still on a chair. He has to observe the decorum chairs and tables decree. But the floor is a great leveler and he is free.

Don't forget to give the boys some marbles and the girls some jacks and if the two sets combine forces and both play marbles and both play jacks as occasion offers, all the better. Tops, too, are floor toys, and very good ones. It requires a nice skill to spin a peg top. And the little spinning jinnies made of one-half a spool are no end of fun.

When you don't know what to do with the children of an evening, or on a rainy day, clear the floor space and bring out the floor toys and peace will descend on gentle wings.
